

➤ Françoise Rullier-Theuret

Director of Studies – French Language

Françoise Rullier-Theuret, Agrégée in modern literature, is a professor of French at the Paris-Sorbonne University, where she teaches lexicology, grammar and stylistics. She is the author of several novels. Her research focuses on comedy writing. She has published books and articles on grammar and narrative genres issues. Also a researcher, she is part of the E. A. 4088 "Sense, Text, History". She specialised in the stylistics of the twentieth century popular novel, in spoken French grammar and in spelling modernising (she is part of the EROFS research group).