What do SUAD alumni do?

"I am working as a journalist, translator and editor at Bahrain News Agency in Manama. I am also MC for free lancing and I am proud to be the first and single French speaking presenter on the Bahrain International TV!"

Fatema Khalid Al Najem

"I am currently working at the Middle East Broadcasting Center (MBC Group) as a Content Acquisition Executive. Before that position, I worked for two years at the Knowledge and Human Development Authority in Dubai (KHDA) as a translator, creative writer and visual storyteller. I started my career just after my Sorbonne graduation, as a class teacher at the French School, the Lycée Français International Georges Pompidou. Then I had an opportunity to join a private language institute in the Dubai Knowledge Village to become a French as a Foreign Language teacher for one year. This teaching experience combined to my keen communication skills and language passion lead me to a more challenging position of Social Media and Marketing Specialist working for a start-up company in the Dubai Media City. It was an opportunity to learn on how to optimize company pages within social media platforms such as Facebook and Twitter, and how to manage advertising campaigns. I really enjoyed every moment of my education experience at Sorbonne and I have very vivid memories of both my classmates and my teachers."

Hala Termanini

"I am a French teacher in Abu Dhabi and I am happy to teach this beautiful language to a young public and moreover to make my pupils discover the richness of the French culture at the same time."

Narimène B.
