Double Bachelor in Philosophy and Sociology

The Double Bachelor in Philosophy and Sociology is an exclusive three-year degree taught in French, that offers students the opportunity to work in a wide range of fields.

The curriculum combines the two joint bachelors (in Philosophy and Sociology) with an interdisciplinary minor in the social sciences, with courses in Political Science, Economics, Geopolitics, International Relations, Public Policy, History and Communication. It gives students the opportunity to thoroughly and rigorously learn about ethics, politics and social phenomena through the perspectives of philosophy and the social sciences.

The Philosophy curriculum emphasises epistemological questions regarding the conditions of scientific objectivity and the way social sciences differ from natural sciences. It explores moral and political issues including classical topics such as justice, freedom and equality, and theory of action (rational choice theory). It emphasises theory of knowledge, metaphysics, ethical and political philosophy. It develops analytical and critical thinking, as well as research, argumentation and assessment capabilities, and allows students to question the theoretical foundations of key philosophical issues in the contemporary world, with a special focus on the challenges of environmental change and the development of artificial intelligence and the new technologies.

The Sociology curriculum emphasises the link between sociological theory and empirical research. Students learn the qualitative and quantitative methodologies of the social sciences and work on social contemporary phenomena such as social stratification, migration, urbanisation, health sociology, socio-cultural inequalities and the question of tolerance, and the socio-political changes in the context of our globalized world.

This double bachelor provides students with a deep and comprehensive understanding of the functioning of contemporary societies, and challenges them to think critically about key sociological and philosophical issues.

A mandatory language course offers students the opportunity to add an extra language to their skills. These language choices include Arabic, English, German, Italian, Chinese or Spanish.

The programme faculty are all internationally renowned professors whose teaching methodology goes beyond the traditional forms of teaching to ensure a balanced and well-rounded learning experience. Personalised tutoring is also available for students to enjoy a more individual learning experience.

The curriculum follows the European ECTS system and the degree is awarded by Sorbonne University in Paris.
